

St. Matthew's Catechism and DIDACHE Devotional

READING PLAN

Use with Luther's Small Catechism with Explanation, 2017 Edition, reading the devotional Catechism readings in tandem with the respective chapters in the Didache.

Luther's Small Catechism with Explanation is an excellent resource for individual and household devotions. The revised 2017 Explanation adds a variety of intentional aids to help you learn and confirm the timeless truths of God's Word for life.

Below is a list of the 38 different key elements of the Small Catechism and the aids in the 2017 Catechism with explanation that help with devotions for a week. If you read the catechism devotional readings each week that correlate with each of the Chapters in DIDACHE beginning with chapter two, we should finish our Bible class in roughly 12 weeks, taking one DIDACHE chapter per week. Note: We can always double the length of this bible study if the pace is found to be too arduous. You can pick and choose the different features as you'd like, but below are some suggestions on how to use these devotional aids in a variety of ways. Many of the devotional plans require use of a Bible (we recommend and provide pages for The Lutheran Study Bible, or TLSB) as well as a Hymnal (Lutheran Service Book, or LSB).

// Vicar Bryce Rosche

Here are a variety of ways to customize this reading plan.

- Basic individual or household devotion. Read the Small Catechism readings that tie to each chapter of the Didache for a given week. Then consider the Reflection and how the Small Catechism reading applies to your daily life. In your prayers, include the prayer at the end of the section that's specifically written for that element of the Small Catechism.
- Simple devotion with young children. Read the Small Catechism readings that tie to each chapter of the Didache for a given week, then read the Central Thought and Bible narrative. Use this as an opportunity to talk about the narrative in the Bible together, then talk about ways to connect the reading and the Bible narrative to the Reflection. Then, in your family prayers, include the prayer at the end of the section that's specifically written for that element of the Small Catechism. In addition, if your children can read, consider also singing the hymn stanzas for the devotion together.
- Devotion on your own or with slightly older children. Consider reading the Small Catechism readings daily that tie to each Didache respective chapter then read the Central Thought and Bible narrative. Use this as an opportunity to talk about the narrative in the Bible together, then talk about ways to connect the reading and the Bible narrative to the Reflection. In addition, read through the questions and answers in A Closer Reading together in order to better understand the words of the Small Catechism in greater detail, as well as what they mean for us. Finish by including the given prayer in your devotions, as well as singing the hymn stanzas together and/or reading the given Psalm.
- Devotion on your own or with middle or high school youth. Consider reading the Small Catechism readings daily that tie to each Didache respective chapter then read the Central Thought and Bible narrative. Use this as an opportunity to talk about the narrative in the Bible together, then talk about ways to connect the reading and the Bible narrative to the Reflection. You can then read through the A Closer Reading section and/or the Connections and Applications questions together. In particular, the Connections and Applications section highlights critical issues and questions that are most likely relevant in the lives of youth and adults, and may serve as a great springboard for deeper discussion into God's Word. Finish by including the given prayer in your devotions, as well as reading/singing the hymn stanzas together and/or reading the given Psalm.
- Note that the DIDACHE Table of Contents Chapter readings will serve as our weekly template to correlate the Catechism Devotional readings - I will be assessing if the pace is too aggressive based upon your feedback - we can move this from a 12 to a 24 week schedule easily - there is a lot of content to cover.
